

BASIC TRUTH

JESUS WANTS TO BE MY FRIEND FOREVER.

SAY THIS

WHO DO YOU NEED?
YOU NEED JESUS.

DO THIS

MORNING TIME

When you go into your baby's room this month, say, "Good morning! I need to see my special little [guy/girl]! There you are! Mommy/Daddy also needs Jesus. I need Jesus more than anything!"

FEEDING TIME

While feeding your baby this month, say, "You need your bottle. You need clean diapers. You need warm baths. You need lots of love. But more than anything, you need Jesus."

CUDDLE TIME

Cuddle up with your baby this month and pray, "Dear God, thank You for letting me be [child's name]'s mommy/daddy. I want the way I live to show him/her that I truly believe Jesus is all I need. Please help me do that. I want him/her to know that he/she needs Jesus, and Jesus will always be there ready to help. I love You, God. In Jesus' name, amen."

BATH TIME

As you bathe your baby this month say, "I need Jesus. Yes, I do. I need Jesus. How about you?" Touch your baby's nose or belly button when you say "you."

DOES MY CHILD MEASURE UP? A MILESTONE COMPARISON TRAP

By Deborah Springer

Google “developmental milestones,” and you may be surprised to see 1.5 million results. Are there that many milestones in the 18-year lifespan of a child from birth until they graduate from high school? No, definitely not.

1.5 million results tells us that common milestones happen at different times, on a different “schedule,” for every single child.

No need to panic if your baby does not automatically become a walking toddler by that first birthday celebration. Your three-year-old who refuses to potty-train will jump that hurdle before she leaves home for college. And, your five-year-old, who still can’t master zippers and buttons, will achieve those skills before his first date.

Is it ever okay to compare your four-year-old to your best friend’s child of the same age or to your older child who said so many more words at the same age? What’s the harm?

Potentially, the harm can be that your child will sense that he or she doesn’t live up to your expectations. She may eventually quit trying to be the person that she thinks you want her to be, and can’t be, or experience stress and shame because she feels inadequate.

Worse yet, you may feel inadequate as a parent because you see your child as “not as good as” another child, and you falsely interpret that as a negative commentary on your parenting abilities.

But comparing for the sake of understanding differences and strengths can bring insights. You may be alerted to real struggles or developmental delays that are best addressed by professionals during the preschool years. When you use a positive form of comparison, you are simply identifying your child’s strengths or their needs.

Your child’s unique strengths, personality characteristics, and temperament will start to shine through starting in the first few months of life. As your baby grows and develops in these early years—at his own developmental pace—he already has what he needs most: You—an amazing parent, perfectly positioned to embrace his physical need to demonstrate he is worth loving exactly how he was created to be.

For more blog posts
and parenting resources, visit:
ParentCue.org

Download the free Parent Cue App AVAILABLE FOR IOS AND ANDROID
DEVICES